

Douglas Hutchison

An inspiring and visionary leader with strong interpersonal skills and high emotional intelligence.

Douglas currently invests in a number of early stage companies in a variety of sectors and acts as a non-executive director to several.

He is Chairman of BioMedical Business Partners, Non-Executive Director of Hallmarq Veterinary Imaging, and a Trustee of the Royal Zoological Society of Scotland.

He has been a Non-Executive Partner in the global executive search firm, Odgers Berndtson, since 2005.

Douglas finds the ReConsulting style of management consulting Refreshing and Rejuvenating.

Douglas initially qualified as a veterinary surgeon. After three years in general practice, he worked in the pharmaceutical and biotechnology industries in increasing leadership roles, ultimately as CEO of a biotechnology company based in Cambridge.

In 1990, he founded Veterinary Business Development which grew to be one of the largest communications companies in its sector worldwide. It published market-leading titles such as Veterinary Times and the Veterinary Business Journal, and was sold to the global corporation Wolters Kluwer in 2000.

